Motel development rezoning defeated

By Janice Harrington

In a bow to public pressure over a motel project development, Didsbury Town Council voted down a motion to rezone land near the new indoor swimming pool.

A motion to rezone the 3 1/3 acres of land from public recreation to commercial was defeated at third reading by council at their last meeting after council was presented with a petition with 126 signatures stating opposition to the motel development.

The petition, which was not a legally valid document (5 percent of the town's population, or 167.75 people must sign any petition for it to be declared legal), stated the signers desired to have the property remain as a public recreation district.

Larry Holuk, a resident of Didsbury for nearly 3 years, said he signed the petition because he wanted to see the area remain green.

"Part of the reason I bought my house here (near the proposed development area) was because I liked the open space for kids to play," he said.

Holuk said he wasn't opposed to the idea of a motel coming to Didsbury, but he did not believe the land beside the pool was the appropriate spot for it.

"It's not that I don't want a motel in Didsbury, I feel we need a motel," he said. "But I just don't want to see commercial enterprises in that area."

Holuk, along with approximately 30 other people showed up for the public meeting on the rezoning at the last council meeting. Besides the loss of the recreational land, loss of parking was also a concern for those who signed the petition.

"With the building of the new curling rink onto the existing complex, the old curling rink would be torn down," said

Publication date change

In an effort to bring you the best in up-to-the-minute election result coverage, The Didsbury Review will be published a day late next week.

Rather than the usual Tuesday publication day, we will be in your mailbox and on the newsstand on Wednesday, October 21.

We will return to our usual publication date on the following week.

Harvest Days

Didsbury's Harvest Days are coming on October 22, 23 and 24.

Sales and a number of fun activities such as pumpkin carving contest, face painting, hayrides and gazebo park entertainment are in the planning stages.

Didsbury businesses are also gearing up with a sales and great deals to celebrate the annual fall event.

Watch for more details in next week's edition of The Didsbury Review.

Forum set

A candidates forum for the Didsbury Municipal election will be held Wednesday, October 14 in the Multi-purpose room at the Memorial Arena.

Each mayoralty will have 5 minutes to speak and each council candidate will have 3 minutes. Questions, addressed to specific candidates, can be asked following the speaking segment of the forum.

Election forums are a common method for the electoral public to ask the questions about issues they feel are most important in elections.

The Didsbury forum will begin at 7:30 p.m.

We were in Calgary last week and while I have absolutely no desire to live in the cement jungle, I admit to being a bit jealous of the city's ability to keep flowers blooming long after our country gardens are toast. Planters were lovely in the downtown area, perky petunias crowded lush geraniums, snapdragons snapped in glorious color and lobelia trailed cheerfully out of colorful beds of pansies. The best I can manage from my garden these days are a few hardy bachelor buttons, some calendula and dusty miller. There are a few pansies but they are pretty sad looking.

I have a book on English gardens and they write cheerfully of winter gardens that contain asters, winter flowering jasmine and the yellow and gold of japonica and the Christmas rose. The English are famous for their gardens and they take gardening very seriously. I don't suppose even the best English gardener has ever learned all there is to know on the subject of plant culture and if somewhere there is someone who knows everything there is to know about growing them, I'll bet no one knows all the related folklore.

Almost all mythologies and religions have legends centered around flowers. Some of the stories are quite charming as in the legend of Aphrodite the goddess of love. As Aphrodite emerged from the seafoam the first white rose unfolded its petals. A gift of the gods to celebrate her birth. The pink rose is supposed to have developed in the Garden of Eden when Eve kissed a white rose it blushed with pleasure and has remained so ever since. Some of the legends are funny. A medieval knight, picking some flowers for his lady on the banks of a river, fell in and was swept away. If he was wearing armor at the time I don't suppose he was swept very far. In any case he is supposed to have called out, "forget me not," as he went under.

In the Victorian age well brought up young men and women were seldom left alone and so any private communication had to be through meaningful glances, smuggled poems, secret letters and messages through trusted third parties. In 1718, Lady Mary Wortley Montagu visited Constantinople and learned how the Turkish people used flowers to send messages. When her letter was published in a London paper, the "language of flowers," or "floral code," became popular and by the nineteenth century it was very fashionable as a method of sending secret messages. Young ladies memorized the floral code and when a gentleman presented her with a bouquet she had only to touch her lips to the flowers to say 'yes' or tear off a petal from one to say 'no.' The meanings became extremely complicated and I imagine a lot of time was wasted looking up the code. There must have been mistakes and misunderstandings as well and if some poor soul who didn't know the code very well presented a bouquet of snapdragons, signifying revenge, when he really wanted lilacs, for first love, then the romance was off to a shaky start.

As the Victorian age ended there were fewer social formalities and more personal freedoms so the floral code became obsolete. I don't think there is much hope of its revival but just in case any of you would like to give it a go here is a bit of the floral code. Anemone-forsaken, Bluebell-constancy, Buttercup-ingratitude, Carnation-marriage, Cyclamen-heart, Dairy-adoration, Forget Me Not-remember, Foxglove-insincerity, Geranium-preference, Heather-solitude, Iris-sorrow, Jasmine-grace, Lilac-first love, Lily of the Valley-sweetness, Lupin-hurt, Marigold-grief, Mignonette-gentleness, Narcissus-coldness, Nasturtium-patriotism, Orange Blossom-chastity, Pansy-friend, Poppy-true, Rose-love, Snapdragon-revenge, Stock-beauty, Snowdrop-purity, Tulip-I love you, Violet-humility.

No listing there for my bachelor buttons, dusty miller and calendula. I will just pretend that they mean brave, hardy and appreciated.

Constitutional forums planned

By Janice Harrington

Forums, designed to give the voting public a better idea about the upcoming referendum on the Charlottetown Accord, are being planned around the County of Mountain View.

Both provincial and federal officials are getting involved to bring more information to Wild Rose constituents about the agreement for changes to the constitution.

Canadians are being asked to vote on the agreement this October 26. The agreement, known as the Charlottetown Accord, was drafted, and agreed upon during First Ministers' meetings earlier this summer. Brochures and other information about the agreement is being sent to each household.

Information seminars by Wild Rose Member of Parliament Louise Feltham have already begun. The first was held last week at Hugh Sutherland School in Carstairs. Others are planned for Sundre and Olds on October 17. The Sundre seminar will be held at the arena club room from 9 to 11 a.m. The Olds seminar will be held at the recreational centre from 1 to 3 p.m.

The provincial government is also planning a forum in the area for Thursday, October 15.

A number of speakers, representing various interest groups as well as both sides of the referendum issue, will be on hand to give participants their views on the agreement as well as to answer questions.

To date, those speaking will include federal Energy Minister Jake Epp, Alberta's Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs Dennis Anderson, Calgary lawyer Donna Maxwell, agricultural economist Lloyd Quantz and retired publisher Neil Leatherdale.

The forum, sponsored by the Olds College and the Olds/Didsbury Constituency Association, will be moderated by Seniors' Minister Roy Brassard.

The forum will take place from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Olds College Alumni Centre.

Motel

Didsbury Curling Club President Bert Pringle in a letter to council. "This area would facilitate the much needed parking space which will accommodate the pool and complex. Building a motel will further eliminate the much needed parking area for the complex winter activities. . . ."

But acting Mayor Al Engel said parking space would become less of a problem with the completion of the entire sports complex. He said plans for the area include more parking than before construction began. He said he was surprised by the reaction to the development.

"I was somewhat surprised by the opposition," he said. "I just hope this [the defeat of the rezoning] doesn't send the wrong message to other developers."

But in spite of the initial defeat of the rezoning bylaw, which was the second condition town council was supposed to meet in an offer to purchase drawn up for the land, developer Gladys Ringheim said she will not give up on her plan to build.

"I guess I can't really blame people for reacting to a plan they had very little information on," Ringheim said. "But now I hope to educate the public about what has been planned so they can see it will only complement the recreational area."

Ringheim said she plans to draw up her own petition to present to council in hopes of persuading them to reconsider rezoning the land.

A legal petition on the rezoning could result in a plebiscite on the issue.

"I want people to know that when I came to this town, I wasn't even thinking about building a motel, but when the town approached me with the idea I saw the benefit that it would be not only to myself but also to the town," she said. "I'm not just planning to build a motel, but a family oriented complex in a recreational theme that will help to enhance the income potential of the swimming pool as well as all the other sports facilities in the area. People need a place to stay when they come for tournaments. If there is no place to stay, they won't come."

Meeting date changed

The date for the next Build Our Pool Society Meeting has been changed from October 14 to October 21.

Anyone with interest in the Society or ideas on fundraising is invited to attend.

The meeting starts at 7:30 p.m. at the Bear Pit in Ross Ford School.

Meet the candidates—running for town council

Gayle Veno

Age: 43

Occupation: financial/administrative assistant at the Olds College

Background: - married with 3 grown children
- has lived in Didsbury for the past 18 years
- Town of Didsbury Assistant Administrator for 9 years
- worked the past 6 years at the Olds College
- currently working on a degree in Certified Management Accounting

Platform: Veno believes there needs to be greater communication between Didsbury Town Council and the community. She feels the town's finances need to be prioritized and spending should be watched. She wants to see more Didsbury development, but not to the point where taxes are too high. She believes the town needs to take a more active role in helping the elderly and unemployed. She believes her background in finances, and municipal affairs and administration would be an asset to town council.

Ed Vermunt

Age: 65

Occupation: retired
contractor

Background: - married with 4 children
- married with 4 children
- has lived in Didsbury for 28 years
- worked in the construction trade for 41 years
- self employed for 30 years
- member of the Lions Club for 12 years
- Past District Governor of the Lions Club
- extensive volunteer experience

Platform: Vermunt said one of his main goals, if elected, would be to attract more business and residential development to town. He also feels it is important to let tax payers know exactly where their tax dollars are going and would like to see greater communication between the town council and the residents. Vermunt believes his business administration experience would be an asset to the job of councillor.

Brian Baswick

Age: 46

Occupation: firefighter
EMT for the City of Calgary

Background: - married with 2 children
- lived in Didsbury since 1978
- member of the Didsbury Fire Department 1978-1990
- Didsbury Fire Chief for 6 years

Platform: Baswick said he has the time and the leadership, administration and rational decision making skills to do well in the job of town councillor. He has dealt with all levels of government as the former Fire Chief, which he sees as an asset to helping put a councillor's role in perspective. He believes strongly in representing the residents' view rather than personal views and believes the town has no where to go but up.

George Anderson

Age: 49

Occupation: self employed general
contractor

Background: - married with 1 child
- former resident of Didsbury, has now for 2 years
- member of the Downtown Revitalization Committee
- member of the town's Tourism and Economic Development Board

Platform: Anderson said one of his main concerns is over the budget. He wants to ensure that Didsbury doesn't get too far into debt. He sees Didsbury as on the edge of a phenomenal growth. He said he would like to see a place for town teenagers created as well as a base to attract industry. He would like to see Didsbury's tax base diversified. Anderson said he has an open mind, tries to make well informed decisions and feels his business experience would apply well to the job of councillor.

Jim Turner

Age: unknown

Occupation: co-owner of Medallion Trophies

Background: - married with 6 children
- lived in Didsbury for 10 years
- holds a Masters in Education
- counsellor for 9 years
- Director of the YMCA
- Vice-President of 2 community colleges for 15 years
- responsible for budgets up to $7 million
- member of the Didsbury Downtown Revitalization Committee
- coached Didsbury girls' baseball for 7 years

Platform: Turner said decided to run for council because he felt his life and business experiences combined with his education could be an asset to Didsbury Town Council.

Norm Pratt

Age: 44

Occupation: machine
operator for Banner
Gelatin

Background: - born and raised east of Didsbury
- Didsbury town councillor since 1989
- elected to Calgary's Mental Board of Directors
- sat on various municipal committees
- member of the Olds Legion

Platform: Pratt wants to try to keep costs down and to attract more industry to Didsbury. He said he wished to make Didsbury a more enjoyable place for people to raise their families.

Brian Banfield

Age: 52

Occupation: science teacher at the Didsbury
High School

Background: - lived in Didsbury since 1970
- presently President of the Didsbury Lions Club
- Director of the provincial Science Council (physics)
- Chief Mark for provincial Physics 30 departmentals for 3 years
- member of Didsbury Hire-a-Student committee for 10 years
- F.C.S.S. board member for 3 years

Platform: Banfield said he is concerned with the town's apparent lack of direction and would like to work towards developing a long-range plan. He believes town council needs to be proactive instead of reactive. Banfield said he would also like to see more bureaucratic fiscal accountability, more action on environmental concerns and greater communication between the council and the population at large.

OPINIONS/EDITORIAL

By Janice Harrington

Damage control

Isn't it strange that a town which has been griping over tax increases the past few years has joined forces to turn down the chance to turn a currently unprofitable piece of land into one that could earn $25,000 a year?

The recent decision by town council to defeat a motion to rezone 3 1/3 acres adjacent to the new swimming pool from public recreation to commercial is a definite slap in the face to tax payers in this town.

Didsbury has a chance to create a unique development with a sports theme which could potentially attract hundreds of sports fans and athletes to town. A feat that would help put Didsbury on the map and support local restaurants, stores and more.

But instead, council voted to turn down the chance.

Granted, there are some people who believe recreational land should be used strictly for recreation, but they are also missing the point about this development. It is not just a motel, it's an opportunity. It is not simply a building full of rooms plopped down in the middle of a sports complex, it's an enhancement. Plans for the project show how more recreational facilities will be added, like a putting green, a jogging track, horse shoe pits and more and not at the tax payers expense.

Concerns about future expansion are also unfounded. It is unrealistic to expect that all future recreational facilities in Didsbury should go in the same place. We are a growing town, we need these things dispersed. Plans are already underway for the development of a triple baseball diamond complex (one far better than the one being lost at the motel site) as well as a new soccer field. Residents should not be afraid that anything is being lost. We would gain instead as money from the sale of the land would probably have been earmarked for the purchase of more recreational land.

We must face the realities of the 90's. There are few government funds left for recreational developments. Municipalities and the tax payers have little left to give towards these kinds of projects. Only working together with business, on projects that can be mutually beneficial, will we be able to provide ourselves with the kind of facilities we want.

A small clarification regarding the upcoming municipal election:

Despite the fact that mayoralty candidate Doug Sharpe has announced his decision to back out of the race, his name will still appear on the ballot.

Under the Elections Act, an officially declared candidate cannot withdraw from the race. The candidate who decides not to accept the office must send a letter to the returning officer stating the intention of refusing the office if elected. If no letter is sent and the candidate receives the majority of votes, that candidate will be declared legally elected.

If a candidate is elected who has publically declared the intention to bow out of the race and has sent the letter, the election will be declared void and a by-election must be held. A by-election would start the process all over again, opening the door for an entirely new race.

Open letter to Mt. View Foundation

Dear Mr. Grimstead:

I just had to write a letter pertaining to the lodges in the Mount View Foundation. It's disturbing to think that somebody can try to destroy these wonderful facilities by slandering managers, administration and staff. My mother, who is 87 years old and in a wheelchair has been in the Sundre Lodge for four years and she is so happy and satisfied that she tells me she wished she could have been there years ago. Then laughingly she says she could live there forever.

We go to the lodge once or twice a week and sometimes more often and we have seen so much kindness toward the residents that you wouldn't mind being one of them. The staff is so helpful when they come for their meals and if someone doesn't show, a staff member goes to the room to find out why (some residents neglect to tell them they won't be there).

I have never seen an unkind act or word against anyone and I know some of the residents don't know how fortunate they are and have a tendency to take things for granted.

The job of a manager requires a special kind of person that can handle numerous complaints a day and seldom praise or a kind word. The administrator also has my support because she has to see things are running as smooth as possible and it's a big job and she is accountable to management, staff, residents, and numerous relatives.

If anyone wishes to speak to me about this matter, I would be happy to do so. I hope this is cleared up soon and let these people get back to their good work.

Yours truly,
Mrs. Maria Stickney
Olds

Editor's Note: John Grimstead is Chairman of the Mount View Foundation which oversees administration of the senior's lodge in Sundre, Olds and Carstairs.

A no vote

Dear Editor:

There is a tremendous propaganda campaign going on now to persuade or threaten people to vote 'Yes' on the new proposed constitutional changes as if the sky would fall if they didn't. It is interesting to note that the politicians and bankers promoting the 'yes' vote are the very ones who have brought this country to its present bankrupt state-at the mercy of the international financiers and taking orders from them.

The old BNA Act, which became a part of the 1982 Constitution, set out the division of powers between the federal and provincial governments which, had its provisions been adhered to, would have given the people much protection. Even the Supreme Court upheld that Constitution but the squandering politicians ignored its rulings and went on with income tax, the NEP, GST, etc., simply because no person or group was knowledgeable or indignant or energetic or rich enough to stop them.

This new constitutional proposal offers us little or none of the protections of the old and appears to perpetuate and accentuate the things that have already caused such division, trouble and expense in Canada. It certainly can't be called a unity package. The wording is indefinite and can be changed after the hasty referendum to further suit the politicians and their masters.

The politicians, who put these proposals together, think the people are stupid, and if the people vote for them, they will have proved the politicians right. Remember--the sky didn't fall when Meech Lake fell apart. Furthermore, we still have the old Constitution. A 'Yes' vote now is giving Mulroney and his cohorts a blank cheque.

The Confederation of Regions Party is strongly opposed to this latest constitutional deal. COR believes that constitutions are for people, not politicians, and that government should be of the people, by the people and for the people--all the people!

Yours truly,
Mrs. Robert H. Ross,
Olds

Report from the Legislature

Hon. Roy Brassard, MLA
Olds-Didsbury Constituency
Irrigation & water management in Alberta

In July, the Alberta Government proclaimed Bill 17, the Irrigation District Rehabilitation Endowment Fund Act. The Act will provide for continued district rehabilitation in future years should the Irrigation Rehabilitation and Expansion Program be discontinued. An Endowment Fund has been established with an initial deposit of $10 million, with an additional $5 million expected to be deposited each year for the next three years.

Interest payments from the fund will be made if the present Irrigation Rehabilitation and Expansion Program ceases. The Irrigation District Endowment Fund Committee will make recommendations to the Associate Minister of Agriculture, the Honourable Shirley McClellan on the goals and amounts of these payments, should they be necessary.

The fund is part of the Alberta Government's commitment to assist irrigated agriculture, and will help with possible fiscal problems in the future. The government is also helping with other projects and changes aimed at improving irrigation and water management in the province.

The Water Management Systems Improvement Program, administered by Alberta Environment, was established in 1975 to rehabilitate and upgrade Alberta's existing headworks systems. It was expanded in 1980 to include an integrated water management plan for southern Alberta. The program's main objective is to ensure efficient and reliable water supply delivery systems to all of Alberta's 13 irrigation districts to meet present and future demands for irrigation and other water users.

The water management headworks system program provides water not only for irrigation but also for a wide range of uses, including domestic water supply for area residents, municipal and industrial water needs, water-based recreational facilities and wildlife enhancement. The program is scheduled for completion by 1995. The total expenditures in the program as of June 30, 1992, are approximately $505.8 million.

Last year, Environment Minister Ralph Klein announced a review of Alberta's water management policy and legislation. A discussion paper was sent out to stakeholders, a toll-free number was provided for comments and 16 workshops and open houses were held around the province to gauge views on the potential changes. A Summary of Public Comments is available from Alberta Environment, which sums up the public opinions collected to date.

The Alberta Government is preparing draft legislation and a policy guide, to be available later in 1992. The general public and related interest groups will be asked to comment on the draft legislation in a second round of public meetings. In addition, key interest groups are currently providing input into the process and method for public consultation. Following the public consultation, Mr. Klein will introduce new water management legislation in the Legislative Assembly in 1993. The new policies will reflect the important and varied issues facing water management in Alberta.

For a copy of the Summary of Public Comments or more information on the changes to Alberta's water management policy, please call Alberta Environment at 1-800-661-5586 toll-free.

Please contact me at our constituency office 556-3132 or my Edmonton office 422-0141 (collect) anytime to voice your concerns, and I still have copies of the Consensus Report on the Constitution and I'd be very happy to send one to you.

MP's column

Louise Feltham, MP
Wildrose Constituency
Senate E's

E #1 - Equality - is settled to everyone's satisfaction.

E #2 - Elected - Senators are to be elected by people of a constituency or by Members of the Legislative Assembly, the province has the power to choose which method it will use for the Senators from its province. Most provinces have already stated that their Senators will be elected by constituencies. Alberta certainly has committed its province to this form of election. Peter Lougheed has said, any province that chooses to do otherwise has got to face its own electorate with the decision; he believes that there will be elections across the country for Senators because people of every province will demand it.

E #3 - E ffective - The Senate will be strong and effective.

Nobody argues that the new Senate has the power to block bills on natural resource taxation. This is a power that Alberta fought for - no more N.E.P.'s. To pretend, in Alberta, that this gain is not important is to forget a painful part of our history.

It is interesting to hear Peter Lougheed say that he expects the Senate to be so powerful that he sees the national media moving its focus from question period in the House of Commons to the Senate Committee rooms - where the real power will lie. Mr. Lougheed makes the point that the Senators will be very powerful because they will have large constituencies and they will be very independent. Precisely because they cannot be appointed to the Cabinet they will not be tied to their parties - they will be free to react to their constituents - and they will do so.

The new legitimacy of the Senators through election will bring the Senate power because people will listen to them with new respect. Everyone agrees with this. A joint session would allow Senators to present their arguments as to why certain pieces of legislation would be "...offensive...to the regions...". Thus giving them the opportunity to convince MP's to change their minds and doing so publicly in a manner likely to attract media attention.

The weight of the Senate will count in any joint vote of the two Houses. To expect that central Canada will have all its representatives from one party is to avoid the reality of history. Central Canada is diverse and elections have always reflected that diversity. In the 1986 general election, for example, Ontario elected 43 Liberals, 46 Conservatives and 10 New Democrats; Quebec elected 12 Liberals and 63 P.C.'s. Thus there are significant numbers of Members from central Canada on both sides of the House and it would be misleading to suggest that they would all be in one accord during any joint sessions of the two Houses.

Whether Senators will become more powerful than the Members of the House—as Peter Lougheed expects—is an interesting point to debate.

Dear Electoral Public:

Merle and Gayle Veno have resided in Didsbury since Dec. 1974, when Merle was transferred to the area by Hudson Bay Oil and Gas Ltd.

Having had the privilege of knowing Gayle and her family for the past 16 years, I feel, with Gayle's knowledge and experience in public and financial administration, that she would be an excellent choice for a seat on Didsbury Town Council.

To date, Gayle was employed by the Town of Didsbury, from March 1977 to June of 1986, in the capacity of Assistant Town Administrator, from July 1986 to present date, she is employed by the Olds Agricultural College, as "Financial Administrative Assistant."

Gayle is a member of "Local Government Administration Association" and is currently working towards her "Certified Management" degree.

During this time Gayle and Merle have raised 3 children, and have been fully involved in all their activities.

In light of the present economy, Gayle has the expertise, integrity and the determination to see a job well done, therefore she would be a definite asset to the Town of Didsbury and it's residents.

Sincerely,
John Bates

Dear Electoral Public:

We wholeheartedly support Brian Baswick in the forthcoming town council election.

We know him as an extremely respected individual with strong convictions, determination and dedication.

Brian is a man of action and his 12 years on the Didsbury Fire Department prove it. In his 6 year term as Former Chief, he has brought a relatively ordinary fire dept. to a level of professionalism and competence never previously attained.

Brian's goal is to make Didsbury a town of growth and economic stability.

We feel assured that if elected to council, he could accomplish this and much more as he follows through to completion any task he takes on.

Sincerely,
Greg & Deborah Cousins,
Cousins Plumbing & Heating,
Didsbury

Dear Electoral Public:

I would like to share my support for Willard Swalm.

He is a man who truly does have a heart for our town. His roots here are deep. He is a very kind, courteous person, and also very good at organization, planning, working and finishing something he starts. He also works very well with people and really cares about issues that affect them.

I feel he would be an excellent choice for town council and to help build our future and our towns.

Sincerely,
M. & L. Kendze

Town council notes

By Janice Harrington

A clarification of the grant process for the proposed Lions' recycling project was presented to Didsbury Town Council at their last meeting.

Dave Whitfield of Alberta Environment told council that his department would likely grant the funds (in the amount of approximately $30,000) for needed equipment but not funds to supply a building for the project.

Town administrator Mike Storey said the town is continuing to search for a building suitable for the project under the terms of the project agreement between the town and the Lions Club. Council granted Storey the authority to enter into negotiation for lease agreements on two possible locations.

A sub-division development plan has been accepted in principle by Didsbury Town Council for land in the town's southeast end.

The plan, presented by Herman and Ivan Dorin, covers a ¼ section of land for residential development that would include R1, R2 and R3 zoning.

More details on the plan are expected later.

The Didsbury Fire Department will be returning to council on November 3 with firm quotes for the replacement of one of the department's tankers.

Updated prices for the tanker are estimated at approximately $145,000.

Council had budgeted $125,000 for the tanker in their last budget, but were informed by representatives of the fire department that prices would be higher than originally thought.

The tanker will replace an older, less efficient tanker currently used by the department. The old tanker is currently for sale with proceeds going towards the replacement's cost.

Council will also be approaching the Rural Fire Protection Association for a donation towards the new tanker.

Town council has authorized a contract with local artist Ruth Jepson for the commission of a mural for the new indoor swimming facility.

Under the contract, Jepson will be paid $5,000 for material and labor to create a beach scene mural 16 feet high which will cover the north and east walls of the swimming tank enclosure.

A miniature view of the mural is currently on display with the scale model of the pool at the Didsbury Municipal Library.

Didsbury Town Council has voted against a recent attempt at contract dispute settlement with CUPE local 417-03.

The latest attempt at settlement came from the union, which proposed a resolution to the grievance placed by the union over the lay-off of town sanitation workers.

Town sanitation workers were laid off earlier this year when town garbage collection was turned over to a private contract.

The union grievance will now go to arbitration, scheduled for October 22.

The regularly scheduled town council meeting of October 20 has been changed because of the municipal election on October 19.

Council will instead meeting on Tuesday, October 27. An organizational meeting will follow the regular council meeting.

Dear Electoral Public:

I would like to take this opportunity to speak on behalf of Mr. Vance van Dam, candidate for councillor in our upcoming municipal election.

For the past three years I have dealt with Vance on a professional level. I find Vance to be a "people person" and have always appreciated his dedication in dealing with our personal and business requirements. His ability to listen to a second point of view and come to a fair decision only exemplifies his human relation skills.

I feel that Vance's history of community service and his sincere interest in a vibrant business sector for our community make him an ideal choice for councillor.

Thank you.
Grant Hemming,
Mountain View Electronics

Dear Electoral Public:

I wish to support Vance van Dam's bid for a position on Town Council.

I first met Vance as a member of the Downtown Revitalization Committee. He impressed me with his strong sense of values and good judgement as well as his commitment to our community. I observed his insistence on hearing all sides of an issue before reaching a conclusion. These conclusions were reached based on recommendations from volunteer boards and his own good business sense.

Since coming to Didsbury, Vance has involved himself in activities that have bettered our community. Shortly after his arrival he became involved in the Minor Hockey Association and became president this year. He is also a member of the Chamber of Commerce. Vance would bring to our Town Council three years of municipal government experience as town councillor with the Town of Claresholm.

I sincerely believe Vance van Dam will provide excellent leadership for our Town and urge all voters to support Vance van Dam on October 19th.

Sincerely,
Millie Lennox

ND's elect candidate for by-election

On Sunday, October 4, 1992 a gathering of about 75 New Democrats nominated Gordon Twigg as their candidate for the Three Hills By-Election.

Twigg, the municipal secretary for the City of Airdrie, said he believed that the New Democrats are the only true alternative to the current Conservative government--a government that is out of touch with the people of Alberta.

"The Liberals may try to steal all of the New Democrats' ideas, but they do not have our commitment to the people of Alberta," Twigg said.

Twigg, a graduate of the University of Saskatchewan, stressed a commitment to open and honest government; to insure quality healthcare without regard to financial status; jobs and job retraining; and a commitment to a first class educational system for all Albertans.

Also attending the nomination meeting was Barry Pashak, MLA for Calgary Forest Lawn. Pashak remarked that during a recent visit to the constituency, "[he] met with many former active Tories who are planning to support Gordon Twigg in the upcoming By-Election."

Pashak stated how "Three Hills is a winnable seat for the New Democrats and they are the only party listening to the fundamental economic problems of the people in the Three Hills constituency."

The Three Hills By-Election will be held on October 26, 1992.

EDUCATION THAT WORKS!

Forum draws subdued crowd

Candidates running for Olds town council and hospital board positions addressed issues and concerns raised by town residents at a public forum held in the lecture theatre at Olds College last Wednesday night (October 7, 1992).

Each candidate was given four minutes to present his or her platform before facing written questions submitted by a small crowd of attentive voters. With twelve prospective councillors, three hospital board hopefuls and one county candidate, moderator Don Orr, an Olds College business instructor, kept the forum moving briskly using diplomacy and humor.

First up was former councillor and retired farmer Roger Kinney. He said he'd been talking with a candidate running in another community who had expressed concern at the waste of taxpayers money by councillors who were only interested in "running to the pork barrel." For his part, Kinney advised, "I will work to the best of my skill and ability to see that you get your tax value."

Many of the candidates listed fiscal restraint as their primary concern. Donna Stauffer, a part time secretary with the Olds College Faculty Association said: "During a recession, taxes have to be kept to a zero increase. Councillors have to listen and be accountable to the taxpayer."

Bill Edgar, owner of Mountain View Funeral Chapel, listed his experience in town politics citing his involvement with the hospital board, the municipal planning commission and the seven years he served as mayor in Olds. "Council will have many serious decisions to make involving keeping the main downtown area a vital part of the town," he said. "We need to do some long range planning."

Larry Bruder, prefaced his remarks by joking about changes at Amoco where he is employed as a senior scheduler. "When I started, I worked for Hudson Bay. Then it became Dome. When I left work today it was still Amoco." He felt he could best address budgeting issues by becoming directly involved. "I felt it was time to quit talking about town management." He listed responsible financial management as his primary concern. "I will work very hard to see that we do not get a tax increase," he promised.

Gary Spurrell, employed by the Alberta Agriculture Farm Business Management Branch generated a laugh with his opening remark. "We don't have a family, but we're certainly working on that one. I'm fairly new here. We've been here for the last three years. I feel my values and skills will be an asset. I promise to ask a lot of questions, to listen to you and ask for community input."

Darlene McNabb, who works with the Academic Team program at the Olds High School saw a need for "more community involvement. I'd like us to work toward sharing a common direction and a sense of community."

Lorna Erickson, the accountant at Foothills Natural Gas Co-op said she felt "We are already taxed to the limit." She added, "Our tax base in Olds could be better understood if it were public knowledge just how much land and buildings are not taxed. I feel that a town council member should be appointed to the Municipal Planning Commission."

Mitch Hunter, a pipeline operator with Amoco Canada Petroleum, got everyone's attention when he began his speech by advising he was "married with four children, all under the age of eight." He went on to say, "You elect responsible people for the day to day running of government, but they also need vision. Having been raised in Calgary I know big city life can isolate the individual. We need people to step forward and get involved. The town needs to bring in new business; it must also grow from within."

Jim Spicer, incumbent councillor and local businessman said: "I've seen quite a few changes this last three years. Sixty new homes were built last year and this year it's closer to forty. We've had some good government. We've had a real good council. We'll listen. I would welcome the opportunity to serve you and listen to you."

Glenn Elmer, former town councillor and agency supervisor for Canadian Western Natural Gas declared that even though his work encompasses "seventeen towns from Red Deer to Cremona, there are none better than the town of Olds." He's a "strong supporter of the Olds Aqua Centre," and noted that Olds is fortunate to be a college town.

Art Rowland, who recently retired from his position as crew foreman with TransAlta Utilities is another incumbent councillor. "It's all been said," he began, but went on to add, "In thirty-seven years with TransAlta I've worked almost every part of the province and Olds is the best town I've ever been in. I will tell you I will be honest. I will keep you informed. If I need help in making decisions I will certainly ask the people of the town for input."

Ken Gillrie, another incumbent councillor and retired businessman, was doing double duty, running for councillor and for a position on the hospital board. "I care about our town," he said. "I hear that you don't want taxes raised." He mentioned several costly upgrades and maintenance projects facing the town including "690,000 to upgrade a storm sewer and $1 million or better for the pool," and asked for a realistic appraisal of tax increases.

Mary Jane Harper, part owner of Leatherdale Publishing is also seeking a seat on the hospital board. She listed involvement with several factions including the county School Board, the Olds Municipal Library and the Olds Golf Club.

Norma Alcock is a current hospital board member. "Although we're very concerned (about government cost cutting measures) we have to work along with the government," she said.

Beryl Henderson, a retired Canadian Superior Oil employee, introduced himself by saying that because his wife Peggy had worked at the Treasury Branch for so many years she was probably better known than he was. "I'm Peggy's husband," he said, which earned a laugh.

The candidates returned to respond to written questions submitted from the floor after a coffee break.

One question raised the concern that with cuts to the secondary education budget, how could the town be assured they'd receive financial support for the Aqua Centre from Olds College. Art Rowland maintained the pool had to be built on site at Olds College. He expressed the hope that Advanced Education "will pick up their part," and that Olds College students "could pay a little bit toward the operation of the pool."

The wisdom of contracting out maintenance for structures, such as the arena, generated one of few animated debates at the forum. The possible reduction in cost was worth looking at, according to Larry Bruder. However the likelihood that cleaning crews would ignore maintenance needs was raised by Ken Gillrie. "I don't think that contracting out the arena is being responsible," he countered. Gary Spurrell said both sides should be examined before being dismissed. "If we want to keep our tax base at a reasonable rate we have to insure we're getting the right service for the right price."

Councillors were asked how they planned to prevent tax increases considering the costly upgrades and services the town was facing in the next term. Ken Gillrie said "There's no way we can keep the taxes the same and then go ahead and spend a million on a pool." Mitch Hunter responded by saying "In the 1992 budget $350,000 is going into a reserve operating fund." He added he'd talked with former town manager Ron Hilton who

Take a second look at your clothes

Is your wardrobe screaming for salvation from the 70's invasion of bell bottom jeans and ponchos?

2nd Look Clothing Incorporated could be just the right place to get back into the styles of today without suffering the recessionary fads of the 90's. Owner/operator, Don Gillespie is busy inspecting consignment clothing now in preparation for his shop's grand opening shortly after Thanksgiving.

Don believes the prices charged for women's and children's clothes today are a joke and hopes to introduce Olds area residents to the quality fashions they desire at prices they can afford. "Everybody is dollar conscious these days. I just got tired of hearing about how everytime my wife would go shopping, she'd come home disgusted with the prices out there for good, quality clothing... there's got to be a better way."

But then finding alternatives to life's little problems is nothing new to Gillespie. After working at a local tire shop for a number of years and feeling unfulfilled, he decided to take matters into hand and quit his job to start a business of his own. "I just got tired of working for someone else and following someone else's orders. I just felt it was time for a change, and the consignment business just seemed to fit well with the times we're being faced with right now."

While 2nd Look Clothing is new to Olds, the idea behind selling clothing on consignment has been around for years. "My family has been into buying clothing through consignment shops for years. When you have eight kids, you just get used to making the best of what you have. All that really mattered was that we had a shirt on our backs... we really didn't know any better and neither did anyone else," says Gillespie.

Buy buying clothing second-hand, doesn't mean buying clothes that look worn. Gillespie is emphatic about the quality of women's and children's garments he plans on stocking in his new store. "People are constantly calling me to make a viewing appointment to see the clothes they want in the store, which is great so long as they realize each piece has to be in excellent condition."

Excellent condition means: freshly cleaned and on hangers, all buttons sewn in place, and all zippers operational. "I set the price at what I feel is fair and the owner gets a 50/50 split on whatever the item sells for in the store."

Gillespie said the idea is that everyone goes away happy from a consignment store... the person who brings the clothes in, the person who buys the clothes, and the store itself. "Anyone can have a good idea like this... lots of people do, but few ever follow them through."

maintained that in order to arrive at a zero percent tax increase $128,000 must be pulled out of the budget. "The sewer system needs work. Pools are required. But if there is a major problem with the sewer system it should come before the pool is built."

Although the discussion grew somewhat animated at times, lengthy debates were kept to a minimum and the event drew to a fairly subdued close shortly before 9 p.m.

Running for county council

By Bob Boucher

Don Molesky

Don Molesky was born in Lorlie, Saskatchewan, in 1939. He attended one room schools in Lorlie and other areas, up to grade eight. He obtained his Senior Matriculation at Yorkton, and Balcarres, Saskatchewan. He later attended Teachers College and University in Saskatoon.

Upon graduating in 1961, Molesky accepted a teaching position in Strasbourg, Saskatchewan, where he taught High School Math, Science, and directed the Athletic Program.

In 1965, Mr. Molesky accepted a position with an engineering firm in Calgary to supervise placement of foundations for a major project at the Southern Alberta Institute of Technology. Upon completion of the project, he decided to further his education to become an Alberta Land Surveyor, which he achieved in 1970. Molesky is an active member of the Alberta Land Surveyors Association, doing committee work for 18 years.

In 1966, wedding bells rang for Molesky and his bride, Marjorie Clark.

Over the years, Molesky has been active as Chairman on school boards, community associations, curling clubs and is presently on the Board of Directors for the Sundre Swimming Pool Fund Raising Committee. He has instructed classes in surveying at the Olds College, and has accepted an invitation to instruct a math class and a drafting class this fall.

Molesky has been a County Councillor for Division 5 since 1989. In that period of time, Molesky has served as Chairman of the Municipal Planning Commission, Chairman of the Parks Committee, Chairman of the Development Appeal Board, Chairman of the Maintenance Committee, Representative to the Sundre Airport Commission, Representative to the Red Deer Regional Planning Commission and Representative to the Recreational Board.

Molesky's desires to continue to improve services in the district with no increase in cost to the community, and endeavours to seek proficiency in all phases of municipal government.

Linda Hislop

Linda Hislop was born in a Calgary hospital but lived there just a few days before being brought home to Sundre by her parents.

She received her education in Sundre and has lived in the County of Mountain View all her life. She has been Purchasing Secretary of the schools for nine years.

Linda decided to place her name on the ballot after some persuasion by various groups in the area. She and her husband Doug live six miles west of Sundre with their two sons Derrick and Garret, where they have been raising cattle for 19 years. At present they have a herd of Simmental Cattle which Linda cares for, as her husband Doug is away a great deal of the time.

Linda has been involved in many community activities through the years, as leader of the Beef Club and President of 4-H Club, a member of the Recreation Board, Secretary of the Agricultural Society and in many other community and area organizations. She has also compiled 3 recreation and cultural master plans for the Town of Sundre.

Linda stated that she has a great understanding for the wishes of the county residents, having lived here all her life and being well known by most everyone in the area.

Her concerns are to see overall community betterment and constructive use of public funds for county projects.

She is disenchanted with the program of using funds from student programs to retain a custodial boss. She stated that if she was elected she would always be available to, and open to, suggestions from the electorate.

Student race

Students from 10 school divisions were in Sundre last week for regional cross country race finals. Winners move on to the provincial competition.

Columbus - the encounter

This is the fifth installment in a series of stories based on the voyage of Christopher Columbus, famed for the discovery of the Americas. 1992 is the 500th anniversary of this voyage. To mark the occasion, The Review will publish, every two weeks until December, stories detailing the trip and how it impacted on life here—in the new world.

Part V

By Ron Tyler

So we are now in the "New World." Of course, Columbus had not "discovered" this New World. The continent at which he had arrived was quite well known already to the millions of people who inhabited it. Even in terms of European landfall, the continent had been "discovered" and temporarily settled by Norse explorers back in the 11th century.

What is important, as one historian puts it, is that this voyage to the lands of the West stands out from others as a significant turning point in the history of the world for one reason, that being that this his journey "began the long process by which a single culture would come to dominate as never before, all the other cultures in the world... to impose its values in their hearts, and to accumulate to itself the power that now enables it to determine nothing less than the destiny of the world."

(As an aside, the day of discovery is really October 23, according to our Gregorian calendar. In 1492, Columbus and the rest of Europe followed the Julian calendar which was 10 days longer than ours.)

Friday, October 12, 1492-- "At daylight... they reached an islet of the Lucayas... Soon they saw naked people, and the Admiral went ashore in his armed longboat."

Where exactly had the little fleet arrived? No one knows for sure. There are about 12 islands in the Bahamas claiming to be the site of the landfall: San Salvador, Samana Coy, Grand Turk, Eleuthera, and others.

Friday, October 12, 1492 - "The Admiral broke out the royal banner and the captain's two flags with the green cross... Once ashore they saw very green trees and many ponds and fruits of various kinds... I, in order that they might be very friendly towards us, because I knew that they were a people who could better be freed and converted to our Holy Faith by love than by force, gave to some of them red caps, and glass bead which they hung on their necks, and many other things of small value, in which they took so much pleasure and became so much our friends that it was a marvel."

By love than by force; a description that was very soon to change.

Membership a matter of satisfaction

By Janice Harrington

Greta Collinson believes membership in the IODE is not just a matter of belonging, but a matter of self-satisfaction.

Collinson, a member of the IODE (formerly known as the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire), said she wants people to know about the organization, which has a chapter in Carstairs.

"Many people know that we have a thrift store here in Carstairs," Collinson said, "but not very many people know what we are about."

IODE is a national volunteer organization for women which bases itself on 3 principles, service, citizenship and education. Collinson said her chapter, called the Dardanelles Chapter, works mainly on the service aspect.

"Service work today has become a very heavy part of our work because of the way society is today," Collinson said. "We look after our own communities first, but we also do a great deal for other, poorer areas in the country."

Collinson said one area the organization's 10,000 members works tirelessly in, is Labrador.

"That is a terribly poor part of our continent," she said. "One of the projects we donate is the Snack Pack program. We give snacks like crackers and peanut butter and milk so the children that go to school without anything on their tummies have something to eat."

IODE, which was started in 1900, also spends much time and energy raising funds for bursaries for students. Collinson said deserving students are given awards or financial aid by the organization to help them further their education.

"In some of the larger centres they also do quite a bit of work with citizenship," she said. "We try to encourage people of other nationalities."

One of the newer projects Collinson's 31 member chapter is involved in is raising funds for the Child Abuse Prevention program.

"We supply money for them to put on seminars to train the workers to deal with children who have been abused," she said. "But it never seems to be enough. It's hard to keep up with the demand."

Part of the Dardanelles' fundraising is done through their thrift shop. Nothing goes to waste at the shop. Clothes and goods not sold are donated to a number of needy organizations around the province.

But the work for generous and charitable people like Collinson and the other members of the IODE continues to grow and as a result, they are always looking for new members.

"This is such a tremendous organization," Collinson said. "We do so much to help people less fortunate than ourselves. There is a great deal of self-satisfaction."

For more information about IODE, call Greta Collinson at 337-3049.

Hotel cafe welcomes new manager

By Kathy Parsons

October 1st was a big day for Karla Steffler as she stepped into the managers shoes of the Cremona Hotel Cafe.

Steffler worked for the previous managers for a year and a half and when they decided to give the restaurant up, Karla decided to don the management cap herself.

"I've never run a restaurant before but the opportunity presented itself and I said why not," Steffler said.

The cafe closed for three days while Steffler and her very supportive family scrubbed, painted and added more tables and chairs. "I couldn't have done it without my family. Even friends and neighbors pitched in!" she said.

The menu offers standard fare for breakfast, lunch and supper and promises good old-fashioned home cooked meals and prompt service. There are daily lunch and supper specials and the Cafe is fully licensed.

communicate their stand on these issues so candidates know what concerns residents have and residents know how each candidate knows what concerns residents have and residents know how each candidate will handle them if elected."

The forum is set for Wednesday, October 14th at 7:30 p.m. in the Village Hall. "It's a good opportunity for everyone to talk and get a feeling for what we all see in the future for Cremona," said Boyle.

Electoral forum planned

By Kathy Parsons

For the first time in many years, Cremona residents have the opportunity to go to the polls and select their Village Council. To help them make that choice local resident, Barry Boyle, has organized an Electoral Forum.

Boyle saw the need for people to get more involved in the election and to express their opinions and concerns about issues. "It also gives candidates an opportunity to see where residents' priorities lie and what's on people's minds," commented Boyle.

Boyle says there are a number of things happening in Cremona and vital decisions to be made. "Everyone should

King-sized headache relief

By Elaine Wilson

A 2:30 a.m. telephone call from the RCMP on March 18, 1992 was the final straw for Brian Maetche who operates the Olds Greyhound bus depot. He was told there had been yet another break-in, the seventh in just under four years. This time the thieves weren't content to merely rob the depot. They totally trashed the entire premises.

"They took out all my bus bills and tickets. They went through the filing cabinet and pulled everything out of there. They took chocolate milk and threw it against the walls and threw eggs all over. They tore open every piece of freight we had in the back. It took four of us four hours to clean it up. We had to stay right here anyway because the window was torn right out of the frame. That wasn't covered by insurance; it cost $600.00 to replace it."

The RCMP arrived almost immediately after the break-in was discovered by a Greyhound driver. A special crime-solving unit was called in from Red Deer. They dusted for fingerprints (which were plentiful) and noticed some muddy footprints leading away from the building.

"[The Red Deer team] arrived here at about 4:30 in the morning and they had the first fellow in custody by six that morning. It was fairly damp during the night and they followed the footprints right to his house. He told them who else was involved and they picked them up later that morning."

The recurrence of vandalism and burglaries mystifies Maetche.

"I can't understand why they would want to break into the depot because there's nothing here really of any value. I don't sell cigarettes simply for that reason."

An alarm system wasn't the answer. Relief drivers wouldn't know the code and a timed alarm system was unsuitable as drivers couldn't guarantee their exact arrival time. The RCMP offered several suggestions which Maet-che followed up on but the only sure way to prevent future burglaries meant getting a full-time watchman.

The first applicant for the job was only a few months old but he went on duty almost immediately. He works for peanuts--and the occasional bowl of Puppy Chow.

"King, right from day one, was not your typical pup," Maetche noted. "Most puppies, they're really playful, they want to go up to anybody. King was never like that. I haven't got the first idea of how to train a dog to be a guard dog. He's just learned it all on his own. He doesn't bother people, unless someone comes up and bothers him."

Before King came along people used to just walk past the counter into the back room to locate parcels--another annoyance King put an end to. "There's a sign there that says 'Employees Only.' I'm sure other people wouldn't like it if I went into their place of business and wandered into the back room to see what's in there. Now, since we've got King, he knows the boundary line end, well, that's off limits."

King, a Malamute Shepherd cross, is on duty 24 hours a day and has full run of the building. During the day you rarely see him. He's there all right, but he's usually behind the counter at his master's feet. Drivers and passengers have nothing to fear from King, but late night marauders would be wise not to test him. He may be only nine months old, but he's all business.

Brian Maetche is relying on King to insure he'll never have a reason to chat with the local constabulary in the wee hours of the morning.

"We're really impressed with how he's working out," Maetche concluded, "it almost seems to us that he was meant to be here."

Hockey Coaching Tips

For more information contact the C.A.H.A. or 3M Canada Inc.

Are your players in shape? Developing high levels of fitness through off-ice conditioning improves players' overall performance. Players are less prone to injury and use their skills more effectively when committed to office training programs.

Before advising players on fitness training, you must have a complete understanding of all conditioning concepts. Learn by attending a coaching clinic in your area or by contacting a local health professional.

The key fitness components for hockey are endurance, strength, power and the ABCs (agility, balance, coordination). Training programs must be designed specifically for the age of your players:

- for 9- to 12-year olds, emphasize fun, group activities which develop the ABCs, like relay races and games that involve rapid direction changes. Strength must be developed by working against resistance for a period of time, using partner resistance or light weights (ones they can lift 25 times in succession)

- for 13- to 16-year olds, you must emphasize both cardiovascular and muscular endurance with activities like continuous running or cycling, and interval training using hockey muscles. You can develop strength with low resistance and high repetitions using free weights and partner resistance

- for 17- to 20-year olds, continue to stress endurance and power development. Emphasize strength training by loading muscles with weight that players can lift only 10 times.

Every training session must begin with warm-up and flexibility exercises, and end with cool-down exercises. Make sure players drink plenty of water before, during and after training sessions.

For more information on improving your coaching skills, contact the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, 1600 James Naismith Dr., Gloucester, Ontario, K1B 5N4, 613-748-5613; 3M Canada Inc. or the Coaching Association of Canada.

Didsbury figure skating club news

The Didsbury Figure Skating Club will be starting their regular season on Monday, October 19, 1992. Classes start at 3:45 p.m. for most of the skaters. On Friday, October 23, the classes start at 2:45 p.m. There is practice ice time, (on the small ice surface), for all Parent and Tot, Learn to Skate, Canskate, and Canfigure on Wednesday from 3:45 - 5:00 p.m. Parent and Tot starts on Wednesday, October 21 at 9:30 a.m.

Because of the construction of the new swimming pool, the front entrance cannot be used at this time. We ask that everyone come to the north side of the arena and use the door by the back of the building. There will be signs to direct you. We are sorry for any inconvenience this may cause, and will let you know when the front doors are accessible again.

For the first couple of weeks, the coaches will be getting to know the children, (and children getting to know the coaches) and where they fit in the best. If it looks a little confusing at first, please don't worry; Dena and Jan know what they are doing.

For anyone interested in joining the Adult Precision Team, please note that the first practice will be on Friday, October 16 at 7:15 p.m.

The "Phoning Moms" for the concession have their teams and are already on the job, as the concession opened for business on Tuesday, October 6. Please remember that these Moms are volunteers just like the rest of us, and need as much cooperation as possible. This is not an easy task that they have undertaken. We would like to take this opportunity to say "Thank You" to these volunteers; Dorothy Bischke, Fran Wright, Linda Pothier and Rhonda Hunter.

School cross country competition results

By Bob Boucher

The South Central Zone cross country competitions hosted by the Sundre Schools was an immense success.

Daryl Brown, the coordinator of the event, expressed his delight with the number of participants attending; approximately 600 from 10 school divisions.

Brown was also pleased with the smooth execution of all phases of the event, which he said could not have been accomplished without the help of the many volunteers from the schools and also the Striders Club.

Top finalist from the zone will now advance to the Provincial competitions on Saturday, October 17, in Ponoka.

First place winners were: Bantam Girl: Jill Aesie - Foothills School Division;

Midget Girl: Sharolyn Shields - Rockyview School Division;

Juvenile Girl: Emily Williams - Foothills School Division; Junior Girl: Janelle Quigley

- Cremona School;

Intermediate Girl: Lean Bickell - Rockyview School Division;

Senior Girl: Erin Brandon - Rockyview School Division; Bantam Boy: D. Slater - Foothills School Division;

Midget Boy: Ryan Martin - Foothills School Division;

Juvenile Boy: Nigel Weibe - Foothills School Division;

Junior Boy: Chad Parr - Foothills School Division;

Intermediate Boy: Chad Walton - Rangeland School Division;

Senior Boy: Terry Medicine Shield - Wheatland School Division.

Curlers brush up for another season

Didsbury curlers are preparing for the start of another season with a work bee planned for October 27.

The Didsbury Curling Club is a prominent recreational facility in Didsbury. The site of the present club was built in 1958, and through the untiring efforts of its members, now hosts over 300 rural and urban curlers who enjoy this winter sport.

The club, this past year, hosted three zone curling play-downs as well as hosting several business and community bonspiels.

The members of our curling club range in age from 12 to 89 and the club is able to provide training courses for members as well as coaches, instructor support and ice technician courses through our affiliation with the Southern Alberta Curling Association.

Through the commitment and dedication of our members, we have Provincial Junior Curling champions, ladies, mens and seniors local curling champions and the Canadian Elks Mixed Curling Champions curling out of the Didsbury Curling Club.

Please contact Neil Youngs 335-4496 or Vair Whitlow 335-9253.

Curling fees for the 1992/93 season will remain the same as last year although junior curlers' fees are currently under review.

The Club will be having a Work Bee on Tuesday, Oct. 27 at 7 p.m.

Cremona minor hockey & ringette news

By Ryan Robertson

The monthly meeting of minor hockey and ringette was held Monday, October 5th. Several issues were discussed, some becoming controversial debates. It was decided that we would give a home for midget hockey shared with Sundre. Each team will host two games each month. This concentrated effort forms a strong barrier between two county centers which previous history did not denote, but above all else will provide tremendous hockey action to both places, and a tremendous opportunity to the players. The subject of the Atom C's entering the Highway 2 & 7 League stalemated and a second meeting on Wednesday, October 14th has become a necessity. Other notes have our junior Belles playing league in Calgary. This should prove very interesting and give them the experience and patience it takes to be the extremely skilled club that they have become. Good luck ladies! Cremona ringette is about to embark on a positive journey.

Don't miss your appointment with death!

In the mood for a good mystery? Why not check out the Peak Theatre Group's version of Agatha Christie's "Appointment with Death".

Director Bill Lough of Sundre is confident the 1945 play will attract lots of interest over its four-day run (October 30, 31, November 6 and 7)...especially at the Halloween showing!

It's on that date the audience is being asked to become involved with the play's desert theme setting by adding some costume ideas of their own. "We are having a special night where the audience is being asked to come dressed up like Arabs, or other desert-type characters. It should add a lot of fun and the best part is everyone can take part."

Lough, who has been with the Sundre-based Peak Theatre Group for nearly eight years of its 12-year existence, finds working with cast members invigorating. "This production has moved along quite smoothly, primarily because of the quality members in our group. It really pays to have strong, talented actors and actresses working on a project together."

But "Appointment with Death" is only one of four productions the Peak Group opens each year. Lough says members strive to put out at least three major productions a year - a goal well supported by community patrons. Peak's mailing list boasts a tally of 350 subscribers, a figure that continues to grow. "We have been very well supported in our efforts here. Something very dear to the hearts of the public recently has been the comedy productions that we just started running last year. The audience really gets into the participation angle of the show by throwing the Styrofoam balls we supply in baskets during each skit."

Most of the funding for the non-profit theatre group comes from government grants and

Successful enough, in fact, to send Peak Theatre four times to the Provincial Acting Finals. "Two years ago we won a provincial title honoring us as the best in our zone in Alberta," says Lough. "It's something we are extremely proud of and hope to be able to regain in the future."

For now, however, Lough says Peak Theatre is content doing what they have always set out to do: bring quality theatre to small communities throughout the district. Lights, camera....

Submission call for poster competition

CKUA Radio is sponsoring a poster competition in honour of its 65th anniversary. The competition, open to residents of Alberta, will offer $2,000 for first prize, $500 for second prize, and $250 for third prize. The prizes reflect the importance of finding a unique visual image which reflects our stations unique format—including music, information and news programming.

"CKUA has been a creative and cultural force in the province for 65 years, and we wanted to give Alberta's visual artists the opportunity to share in celebrating our 65th anniversary," says CKUA's General Manager, Jackie Rollans.

"It is part of our mandate to foster the arts in this province. The arts community has given CKUA so much support over the years, we felt it was the perfect time to reciprocate," says Rollans.

The deadline for submissions is November 2, 1992. For submission guidelines and entry forms, contact: CKUA AM.FM Radio, 4th Floor, 10526 Jasper Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta T5J 1Z7. Phone: 428-7595.

DA notes

By Steve Archibald
District Agriculturist, Olds
Creating Tomorrow

What will rural Alberta be like in 15 years? This is the question that the Creating Tomorrow process is built around.

Stakeholders in Alberta's agricultural industry along with Alberta Agriculture have been addressing the question for several months. They have prepared a draft document titled Creating Tomorrow—A Vision of Alberta's Agriculture and Food Industry. This document will influence agricultural policy in the coming years and be the basis for developing a strategic plan to accomplish the goals developed.

Creating Tomorrow is a process not a document. Documents are read and then put on a shelf to gather dust. Processes are on going and changing. The strategic planning process involves continual re-evaluation of goals and strategies to accomplish the goals. The goals and strategies we set in 1975, (15 years ago) do not apply to the conditions in agriculture we face today.

We can not change where we are today but we can plan for the future. No one can promise that the future will be exactly the way you want it but it is certain that if you do not become involved you won't have any influence on it.

On October 22 you will have a chance to add your input into the process. On October 22 at Creating Tomorrow Meeting will be held in Olds at the Olds College Alumni Centre. It will be a breakfast meeting starting at 7 a.m. because of the busy time of year.

Ernie Isley, the Minister of Agriculture and Shirley McClellan, the Associate Minister of Agriculture and Minister Responsible for Rural Development will both be in attendance.

The meeting format is a working one. You will have an opportunity to share your views and comments with your colleagues and other stakeholders in rural Alberta.

There is no charge for the meeting, breakfast will be provided and preregistration is required by October 20. Space is limited so preregister early.

For more information call 556-4220.

Western wheat growers applaud NAFTA

The signing of the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) is very good news for Western Canada farmers, says Western Canadian Wheat Growers President Hubert Esquirol.

"This is a good deal," says Esquirol. "A country such as Canada with a small population and a large food production base must always ensure easy access to foreign markets. The NAFTA clears the way for our farmers to capitalize on a very large continental market."

Under the NAFTA, Mexico will convert its present wheat and barley import licenses to duties. Over time, these duties will be phased out. Tariffs on lentils and rye will also be eliminated.

"Last year Canada exported a record 500,000 tonnes of wheat to Mexico," notes Esquirol. "The elimination of trade barriers should see this market expand, and total tonnage increase."

"The NAFTA will have a positive affect on our domestic feed grain markets," adds Esquirol. "For instance, a reduction of tariffs on Canadian pork destined for Mexico will strengthen our pork industry, and that means an increased demand for domestic feed grains."

The NAFTA will also allow Canada, the United States and Mexico to collectively address the issue of export subsidies, and specifically, work toward the elimination of these subsidies in North American agricultural trade.

"The Western Canadian Wheat Growers Association has long supported movement toward a market free of trade-distorting export subsidies," emphasizes Esquirol. "We believe our government and the governments of our North American trading partners have the political will to move on this issue and to make the NAFTA work."

Salinity service celebrates 10th anniversary

For the last 10 years the Dryland Salinity Investigation Service has helped Alberta farmers battle white, unproductive patches in their fields.

"We can look back over the last decade with a lot of satisfaction," says Don Wentz, provincial soil salinity specialist. "The program started a new direction in salinity control."

Research done in Montana in the 1970s contributed to the program's design says Wentz. There, a large saline seep was reclaimed with alfalfa. Alfalfa was also the control recommended when the Alberta salinity program was started in 1982 by Alberta Agriculture, Alberta

Environment and the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration (PFRA).

The Dryland Salinity Investigation program helps producers in several ways. The service identifies the type of saline seep and its recharge area. Control and reclamation methods are recommended. Technical support includes helping start controls and monitoring results.

Today there are over 360 farmers, more than 400 projects, over 12,000 acres of recharge and more than 6,000 saline acres in the program. "And, the control implementation rate is better than 66 per cent," Wentz adds.

Producer progress since

1982 is also being followed up. "Results are verifying that forages are effective in lowering water tables and stopping or reducing the flow of saline groundwater to saline seeps. Places where fields were white and unproductive are now producing healthy forage crops."

One of the most dramatic changes is at a Warner area project where alfalfa was planted in the recharge area. "It's improved enough the farmer has planted cereal crops into the saline seep," says Wentz.

Saline seeps occur naturally on the Canadian prairies. They take several years to develop. In the most common type, water tables build up in a recharge area and salts collect in a discharge area or seep. Potential recharge areas include sloughs, pot holes, large summerfallow fields, water courses, draws and borrow pits.

When the water table reaches a saturation point in a recharge area, it has to move. The natural movement is down a slope. As it moves, it dissolves soluble salts found in the soil and carries them along. If the water comes to the surface, the sun can evaporate the water leaving the salts behind. Over time, the salt level becomes so high in this discharge area that plant growth is limited.

Planting alfalfa in recharge areas is recommended. Alfalfa's long roots, often over 20 feet, use up the excess groundwater. When the water table drops, the saline seep process stops.

There are other types of saline seeps. Their recharge area comes from a deep artesian water flow. "These seeps are difficult to control and often impossible to reclaim," he notes. "This is why it is important to identify saline seeps and recharge areas, so you can take the right steps in control and reclamation."

"If you have a salinity problem that's expanding or you need help to control a salinity problem, the Dryland Salinity Investigation Service can help," says Wentz. For more information contact your local Alberta Agriculture district agriculturist, municipal agricultural fieldman or Darryl Mann, coordinator of the Dryland Salinity Control Association at 381-5467.

Fall abundance

A familiar sight at this time of year is harvesting activities. This year, burnt crops are also becoming a common sight as farmers burn away crops too damaged to harvest.

AGRICULTURAL NEWS

Agriculture forum planned

Alberta Agriculture will be hosting a public forum at Olds College, Thursday, October 22, to determine the direction agriculture and food industries should take over the next 15 years. Feedback is needed on the Province's vision statement included in the strategic planning document, "Creating Tomorrow."

The draft vision statement was initially released by government and industry representatives in May, 1992. It suggests the agriculture and food industries in Alberta become the leading suppliers of the world's food products, and agricultural commodities, services and technologies.

Agriculture Minister Ernie Isley, Associate Minister Shirley McClellan, and Deputy Minister Ben McEwen and members of the Local Planning Committee will be on hand to listen to feedback stakeholders wish to share on subsequent goals outlined in the document to make the vision a reality.

Committee Spokesman, and Dean of Agricultural Production and Animal Science at Olds College, Denis Kennedy, believes everyone should have a voice in this vital planning process; whether they are producers, processors, service technicians, academics, or consumers. "We have a choice in where we are going. This process suggests one vision... but it may or may not be on target for what industry out there today would like to see."

One of the main focuses recommended for agriculture and food industries involves becoming more globally competitive. Specifically, this could involve increasing the productivity of:

food and non-food items, agricultural commodities, services, and technologies. "Some very important key elements would have to be in place first before we could realistically see this goal attained," says Kennedy. "These elements involve such items as customer satisfaction, a dynamic processing sector, a well-managed environment, and an efficient transportation system, to name only a few."

The Olds College forum and others like it being held throughout the province, is considered the next step necessary in the strategic planning process the province is undertaking to tackle long-term, critical issues surrounding agriculture today. A total of nine similar forums are being held during the months of October and November in both rural and urban centres so that all stakeholders in the central region have equal opportunity to share their individual viewpoints.

Once sufficient feedback has been collected, the next two steps in the planning process; the creation of strategies and the establishment of action plans can commence.

For more information about the Creating Tomorrow document, or to register for the forum, please contact the Local Planning Committee registration centre at (403) 556-4220.

Cattle Commission Launches Environmental Award

The Alberta Cattle Commission (ACC) has established a new award to recognize the contribution cattle producers make to the environment. The first annual Environmental Stewardship Award will be presented at the commission's annual general meeting in Calgary in December. The award will recognize cattle producers whose natural resource management practices enhance the environment and improve the wildlife habitat. "Cattle producers care about the environment and are voluntarily changing production practices to make their operations increasingly environmentally sustainable," says Margaret Jensen, ACC producer liaison chair. "The Environmental Stewardship Award was created to publicly recognize some of the individuals who are doing an excellent job of protecting and enhancing the environment." The 1992 winner will receive a commemorative plaque and an all expenses paid trip for two from anywhere in Alberta to the commission's annual general meeting December 7 through 9. For more information, contact Jensen in Tees at 788-2474, or Joanne Lemke with the ACC in Calgary at 275-4400.

COURT CHALLENGES THREATEN ALL BEEF PRODUCERS

The Alberta Cattle Commission, all its programs and the beef industry's major funding base are at risk.

This fall, major issues make it crucially important that Alberta beef producers attend local Alberta Cattle Commission zone meetings to be informed.

Court action

Two groups of Alberta producers are challenging the ACC in court on the present check-off system, as well as how the ACC spends the dollars it gets.

ACC programs

These programs have been designed by beef producers to provide real benefits and value to the industry. Goals are enhancing industry's image and presenting a positive environmental and animal welfare message. As well, programs support national beef advertising to health conscious consumers, while building on industry cooperation and working as advisors to government.

Contact Ben Thorlakson for more information on the Alberta Cattle Commission. Phone 948-5434.

Where the dollars go

The ACC is an organization of producers, for producers. A full accounting of dollars spent is covered at local zone meetings this fall.

Get more information

You can have your say on these important issues and the future of your industry at the following meetings.

THERE'S NO ALTERNATIVE TO CONCRETE

Concrete is the basement building material with all the advantages

It's a proven performer. Suggest Tough. Durable. A concrete basement will never leak or rot. And concrete is safe. Quality-controlled concrete needs no toxic chemicals which may be hazardous to building occupants.
Concrete is an energy-wise choice.
A concrete basement needs little heat or air-conditioning. And concrete walls are easily insulated.

Economically, concrete is a good investment. A concrete basement will add years of life to the foundation and consequently dollars to the resale value of your building.

Add up the advantages. There's simply no alternative to quality-controlled concrete. The best basement building material.

Quality Doesn't Cost

Southwest Didsbury news

By Bessie Eckstrand

A number of ladies from the southern district of Red Deer Presbyterian U.C.W. motored to Bowden United Church on Sept. 29 to attend the fall meeting. The theme was Faith, Caring and Fairness. Discussions were held on Christian attitude and responsibility towards the environment. Dr. Chanely, a missionary from Nepal had been speaking in the area. Also pornography is rampant in some video stores and people should write to their MP and MLA and voice their concerns. Everyone enjoyed the drive to Bowden. The fall colours and seeing and visiting with old friends.

Your correspondent was hosting at the Didsbury Museum several weeks ago and the Didsbury Grade 2 class were guest visitors. They were very well behaved and interested in the artifacts. One of their questions was, which is the oldest house in Didsbury? I couldn't answer for sure, but on looking up a picture of the Immigration Building (shed as we called it) late 1800's and later owned by the Dedels family - in the Images book made by the Didsbury Museum.

I saw a house just N.W. of the Immigration Building and talking to Rose Feeg, she said that would be the house just west of the old hospital and she was sure that this would be the house shown on the picture. Gilbert said too that the C.P.R. station in those early years was just a railway car. If anyone knows of an older house please let me know.

Date To Note:

Knox U.C.W. Christmas Tea & Bazaar & Bake Sale will be held at Knox Church on Nov. 14, afternoon 2 - 4:30.

Didsbury student named to national advisory board

Yvonne Dick, a student at Didsbury H.S., has been named to the National Advisory Board for TG Magazine. . . . Voices of Today's Generation. The 16-year-old applied for the position last spring, and was notified of her selection in the summer.

Dick's work begins with the September, 1992 issue of TG, just off the press and headed to every high school in the country. Now in its 53rd year of publishing 'head and heart' material for Canadian teenagers, TG Magazine relies heavily on the work of its student advisors.

Says Editor Donna Douglas: "Yvonne Dick was selected as one of 80 advisors, from over 300 applications for the positions. We look for students who represent all facets of Canadian teen life. "Since TG's content is 48% student-generated, we feel it's important that students become the driving force behind the editorial mandate and how it's carried out."

Advisors are responsible for forming focus groups in their schools, then critiquing each of the magazine's six issues over the year, page by page. They send a written report on the findings of their focus group and suggestions for future topics.

"Our expectations of our student advisors are pretty high," says Editor Douglas. "They must respond to every issue, or we replace them with other advisors waiting in line. It's a commitment that we respect and we expect the students to do the same."

She reports a high performance rate among the magazine's 300,000 readers.

Didsbury Library news

The Board of Directors has been re-elected to the following positions: Chairperson - Susan Pratt, Vice-Chairperson - Rosemary Simon, Secretary - Rodger Logan, Treasurer - Jim Miller. Members-at-large are Jean Whittaker, Arlene Maxwell, Donna Poiras and Marjorie Malinowski who remains as Town Council Representative.

The Board and staff are working toward maintaining the library as a current source of recreational and informative literature. New books are ordered yearly from a budget of about $7,500.00 ($2.25/capita); the selection totals 17,000 books. They invite your comments and suggestions regarding books purchases, available services and library policies.

The Board of Directors meets bi-monthly and makes decisions regarding finances, staff concerns, and programs. They also decide what library services would best serve this community. Their most current undertaking is the automation of the subject file and checkout book service. This is expected to be completed in the new year.

Review

Questionnaire

In our ongoing effort to maintain The Review as the best information source in the County of Mountain View, we are once again asking for your input. Please take a minute to fill out the 4 short questions listed below and return them to our office at 2034 - 19 Ave., Box 760, Didsbury, Fax 335-8143.

Your opinions and support are vital to us as we continue to change and improve The Review. Thank you for your help.

- 1) Do you consider the paper to be a valuable amenity in the community?
- 2) What do you enjoy or appreciate most about The Review?
- 3) If you could add one new feature or article to The Didsbury Review what feature would you add?
- 4) If you had to eliminate one feature or article from The Didsbury Review which feature or article would you eliminate?
